Eight Northern Oklahoma College Nursing students received their nursing pins Friday night at the Renfro Center at NOC Tonkawa.

Receiving pins were Meliah Boyd (Tonkawa campus), Amber Drapalla (Enid), Rebecca Gordon (Tonkawa), Saeble Harp (Tonkawa), Adriana Lopez (Enid), Tara Mueggenborg (Stillwater), Kacie Platt (Tonkawa), and Kaylee Terry (Tonkawa).

Dr. Nikole Hicks, NOC Nursing Division Chair, said the event is truly a celebration.

“We are here to celebrate these graduates,” Dr. Hicks said. “Tonight’s event is the culmination of a lot of blood, sweat, and tears. I know these graduates appreciate all their friends and families for their support in what is one of the most difficult degree programs. We are so excited to help them make the transition from nursing student to professional nurse.”

Friday’s guest speaker was Paula Harris, former nurse, nursing instructor, and the wife of NOC President Dr. Clark Harris.

“Paula (Harris) has been such a joy to work with since she joined the NOC family,” Hicks said.

In her remarks, Harris told the nursing graduates, “You have successfully completed your nursing education in the midst of an extraordinary public health emergency. Not only did you survive, but you are stronger for the experience.

Nursing

During a global pandemic you learned how to perform nursing skills and how to think like a nurse. You honed your ability to be resilient, accountable, and responsible. You learned how to be a member of a healthcare team, how to work autonomously and how to provide leadership. All skills that will serve you well as a nurse. During this remarkable journey, you had the support of family and friends many of whom are here to celebrate with you today.”

“Just as the nursing faculty guided you through experiences in the nursing program,” she continued. “You will help patients and their families face the unknown and navigate the healthcare environment. You will be their anchor in the storm. I encourage you to use the art of nursing presence by being intentional, authentic, and in relationship with your patients and their loved ones. This will actually feed your soul as you work in a complex and often times chaotic work environment.”

“I want to thank you for choosing to enter this rewarding profession in which your life and work touches that of another. I can promise you that you will never be bored, you will make a difference in someone’s life every day that you go to work, you will work hard, and some days you will end your shift and think “what a ride!” The profound work that you do will impact so many people’s lives in a way that you will never know and may never imagine.”

Two awards were presented at the pinning ceremony. Tara Mueggenborg was presented the Spirit of Nursing Award, and the Exceptional Preceptor Award was presented to Brianna Tom of Stillwater Medical Center.

Maverick athletes reunite at event

Over 100 former NOC Tonkawa Maverick Athletes and their families attended the first ever athletics reunion Saturday, Oct. 15 at the Renfro Center.

Former baseball, basketball, cheer, softball, and soccer athletes had an opportunity to catch up with teammates, look at NOC sports memorabilia and bid on old athletic equipment.

NOC President Dr. Clark Harris welcomed the alums to the event.

"Welcome back to NOC, we're glad you're here," Dr. Harris said. "We appreciate all you have done for NOC and we appreciate your willingness to stay connected to NOC. We hope you have a great day."

Athletic director Alan Foster thanked the alums for coming back for the event saying, "We thank you for coming back today, we ask you to connect to our current student athletes and show them the future. We thank you for sharing your time today and hope this is the first of many athletic alumni events."

Among the alums were members of Lady Mavs Basketball Coach Greg Krause's first team in 1982-83.

"It was great to see members of my first team here," Krause said. "Your first year as a head coach is always special. They really enjoyed reuniting with each other too. We also had a former player from the 1985-87 years. All of them are looking forward to the next reunion and encouraging others to come."

Pickens Learning Commons official

The transformation of the Northern Oklahoma College library to the Pickens Learning Commons is complete as Northern Oklahoma College dedicated the updated facility at last Wednesday's grand opening.

The event included remarks by NOC President Dr. Clark Harris, Hugh Pickens, artist Yatika Starr Fields, NOC Board of Regents Chairman Jami Groendyke, Tonkawa Chamber of Commerce President Kristy Favela, and NOC Vice President for Community Relations and Development Sheri Snyder.

Dr. Harris said the project was part of his "Building a Better NOC" initiative started last year.

"This project along with the generous support from the Pickens Museum connects with the current NOC Strategic Goals as well as to the Core Values of personalized education, continuous improvement and community and civic engagement," Harris said. "NOC strives to provide initiatives to insure student learning and student success. Programs and activities conducted by the institution are also designed to promote a quality of life that enhances the students' total growth and development. The project exemplifies all of this."

Regent chair Jami Groendyke said she is inspired by the Pickens' family generosity.

"Today signifies an important day for Northern Oklahoma College," Groendyke said. "On behalf of the NOC Board of Regents, it gives me great pleasure to assist in this formal recognition and dedication. As an NOC alumna myself, I am inspired by the Pickens' generosity to give back to this institution. As a Native American, I am proud of the gift of Native art that is showcased here at Northern also made possible by the Pickens family."

In his remarks, Pickens spoke of the value of art.

"Art can do a lot of things, Pickens said. "Art can inspire us, art can help us be open to other ideas, art can uplift our minds and spirits. Art can change the world. I know this for a fact because it changed mine."

Pickens began collecting art in the 1960's, then combined collections with his wife Dr. S.J. Pickens in 1984 and continued to collect art for 33 years where they spend hours in their studio admiring the art work they had acquired.

Pickens then said that (former NOC President) Dr. Cheryl Evans had asked if NOC could display art by artist Yatika Starr Fields. Pickens then commissioned Fields to paint a mural in the Cultural Engagement Center at NOC. He then said that (current president) Dr. Clark Harris had asked that Pickens' presence at NOC continue and the result (100'x 20' mural) and over 80 pieces of art is on display today.

"I am displaying this art to honor my late wife's memory," he said. "I hope the students today will see this art and be inspired by it."

Native American Artist Yatika Starr Fields thanked Pickens for bringing him into the project.

"I want to thank Mr. Pickens for allowing me to share his vision," he said. "To have this amount of art work in one place here at NOC in Tonkawa is truly amazing. It's not something you see in Oklahoma so NOC and Tonkawa are very fortunate."

Fields explained the mural as a work of Native American inspiration and he hopes this work will inspire others.

"I want to help students gain an inspiration to the energy of this mural and see vision of the past and the future," he said.

Chamber President Kristy Street said the new learning center is an amazing facility.

"I love how beautiful this Native American art work is and how it can bring cultures together and inspire students," she said. "I love how NOC and the City of Tonkawa can come together. That's what Tonkawa means and I love that idea."

In the opening remarks of the event, Vice President for Community Relations & Development Sheri Snyder said, "Today, we want to not only share this amazing transformation within the Vineyard Library, but also want to formally recognize our private donor, Mr. Hugh Pickens and the Doctor Pickens Museum, Inc.," said Sheri Snyder. "We are so proud of our partnership with Hugh and The Doctor Pickens Museum, which started in 2020, when Hugh commissioned the beautiful 50-foot murals painted by Osage artist Yatika Starr Fields in our Cultural Engagement Center. Many of you were here in June 2021 when we held the artist reception and formal recognition."

"We are extremely grateful that this partnership has continued," Snyder said. "In April of this year, President Harris shared the vision of the Tonkawa Library and new contemporary Student Learning Commons with the Northern Oklahoma College Board of Regents, where they not only approved the project, but also approved the naming of the facility thanks to the substantial support from the Doctor Pickens Museum, Inc."

Tonkawa Chamber of Commerce Directors also held a ribbon cutting ceremony for the event.

The dedication coincided with Pickens' birthday so in honor of the event, the NOC Roustabouts sang Happy Birthday to Pickens.

Nursing students participate in White Coat Ceremony

The Northern Oklahoma College Division of Nursing held a White Coat Ceremony Thursday, Oct. 6 at the Renfro Center in Tonkawa.

The first White Coat Ceremony was created by Dr. Arnold P. Gold in 1993 to bring a focus on human caring back to the practice of medicine. The ceremony has expanded from medical schools to multiple healthcare disciplines, including nursing. During the ceremony, students are cloaked and recite a professionalism pledge to acknowledge the importance of human caring and the need to keep patients at the center of that care. The cloaking ceremony symbolizes the passing of the nursing profession to a future generation who have the responsibility to provide compassionate care with the most up-to-date evidence throughout their careers, leaving the profession better off when they leave than when they began.

“The white coat ceremony honors nursing’s traditions and acknowledges the equal contributions nurses at all levels make to humanistic caring healthcare practices,” said NOC Nursing Division Chair Dr. Nikole Hicks. “The placement of the ceremony for NOC nursing students marks their transition from the practice lab to patient care settings within our communities.”

Students in the Class of 2024 participating in the ceremony include the following:

Tonkawa – Ann Galindo, Caid Glowacki, Beth Hall, Aubrey Ingmire, Rosette Pruitt, Valrie Roblyer, Jennifer Schaefer, Cheyanne Shaw, Teagan Stewart, Brett Stoup, Jessica Waller, and Vanessa Wright.

Enid – Jessica Belair, Christopher Caez-Rojas, Jacqueline Camarena, Kasey Collins, Curtis Conner, Maria Cornwell, Cindi Hagans, Lauren Haley, Alyson Myers, and Meagan Rexrode.

NOC Nursing receives accreditation

Northern Oklahoma College Division of Nursing received an area of commendation this week as the Accreditation Commission for Education (ACEN) granted continuing accreditation to the associate nursing program.

"There has been an extensive amount of work done by the faculty to make program improvements and help us to have a successful accreditation outcome," said Dr. Nikole Hicks, NOC Nursing Division Chair. "The support from (NOC President) Dr. Clark Harris and the Board of Regents has been critically important and will continue to be a crucial part of our success moving forward. I appreciate the opportunity to become part of NOC and lead this truly dedicated faculty. I am looking forward to more exceptional outcomes in the future."

The area of commendation came in NOC's innovative Academic Practice Partner program. Students selected to participate in this program during the last semester of the nursing program work one-on-one with a registered nurse preceptor in a paid clinical experience at a partner facility. Academic Practice Partnerships benefit students be ready for practice upon graduation and help the clinical facilities support their transition to the registered nurse workforce upon graduation. NOC is pleased to have strong partnerships with clinical facilities within our communities that make this program possible.

ACEN peer evaluator visited NOC this past spring to verify the nursing program's compliance with accreditation standards as part of the evaluation process.

The next evaluation site visit is scheduled in Spring 2030.

NOC offers nursing at all three locations including Tonkawa, Enid, and Stillwater. The next class is for Fall 2023. Interested students may apply to the NOC Nursing Program at <https://bit.ly/3CMefAS>.

24 Works on Paper exhibit til Nov. 4

24 Works on Paper, Oklahoma's only traveling art exhibit that features artists who live and work in the state, will be on view from Sept. 26 – Nov. 4 in the Eleanor Hays Art Gallery at Northern Oklahoma College in Tonkawa.

Artists chosen for the curated exhibit differ in age, background and style and what unifies them is that they all make work on paper - in media such as printmaking, drawing, painting and photography.

The guest curator for 24 Works on Paper was Michael R. Grauer, Curator of Cowboy Collections and Western Art at the National Cowboy & Western Heritage Museum. The biennial exhibition is managed by the Oklahoma Visual Arts Coalition, a statewide nonprofit whose mission is to grow and develop Oklahoma's visual arts community through education, promotion, connection and funding.

Current Miss NOC's reflect on year

Emma Valgora - Miss NOC Tonkawa

Miss NOC Tonkawa Emma Valgora's year-long reign comes to end Oct. 25 when the new Miss NOC Tonkawa will be crowned.

It's been quite a ride, said the sophomore elementary education/music theatre major from Ponca City.

"It's been so much fun and I hate to see it end. It's kind of sad," she said. "I have had so much fun and been able to meet so many amazing people."

Valgora participated in pageants previous to Miss NOC but never dreamed she would be selected.

"You're on stage with so many talented young women and when I was selected, I was stunned," she said. "It was definitely a surreal moment and one that I will never forget."

Among the many highlights of her year was to participate in the Miss Oklahoma Pageant.

"That was so amazing to be in Tulsa with so many talented women from all across the state," she said. "Just to be on stage was an amazing experience."

Valgora would like a return to the Miss Oklahoma pageant, to qualify she must win a sanctioned competition this year.

"I would love to go back," she said.

Valgora's impact statement during her year was Mental Health and Suicide Prevention, a subject she feels strongly. During Mental Health and Suicide Prevention Week at NOC, Valgora spoke during a fine arts performance at NOC Tonkawa.

"It was a great way to talk about things that are so important but people don't want to talk about," she said. "I hope that bringing these things out in the public will make a difference."

During her year, Valgora spoke to many groups and rode in various parades among her duties.

"It's a lot of fun to talk to people and be in a position where I can be a role model for others," she said. "You never know when you have an opportunity to make a difference."

She had special thanks for Miss NOC coordinator Shannon Varner who helped during her Miss NOC Tonkawa year.

"There is a reason Shannon was named director of the year (with NOC Enid's Terri Sunderland) last year," Valgora said. "She is amazing and I appreciate her so much for all she has done for me. I consider her a great friend for life. I could not have done this without her."

Valgora is uncertain of her future plans but does plan to continue music theatre at a university.

"I love it so much, I've loved it since my mom put me in voice lessons and I started doing productions in Ponca City," she said. "It's a lot of hard work but it is so rewarding. I can't imagine not performing."

Even though her year is up, Valgora is excited to see the new Miss NOC Tonkawa on Tuesday.

NOC that will be selected on Oct. 25?

"Do the best you can to make the most of your year," she said. "It only comes around once and the year goes by really fast so enjoy it."

Mia-Claire Jones, Miss NOC Enid

Mia-Claire Jones' year as Miss NOC Enid ends Tuesday with the crowning of a new Miss NOC Enid.

It's been a fast and furious year for the sophomore from Morrison, Oklahoma, studying Pre-Med.

"It's been a blast," Jones said. "It's gone by really fast but I've enjoyed it so very much."

Jones had never participated in a pageant before last year's Miss NOC event and was shocked when she won.

"I did it for the scholarship money," she said. "I thought 'why not' give it a try?"

"I was kind of scared," she added. "I'd been in front of people before but this was totally different. It really pushed me out of my comfort zone."

What's been the best part of being Miss NOC? "Just meeting so many great people and experiencing new things," she said. "I know I've met people that will be lifelong friends."

When Jones was planning for the talent portion of the Miss NOC Scholarship Competition, she planned to play a piano selection. This was a challenge for Jones because she had just taught herself to play piano during COVID-19.

"That was pretty scary," she said. "But I got through it okay."

Jones is now takes regular lessons.

Jones' impact statement is "Adopt Positivity" which she is very passionate.

"I gave away a lot of toothbrushes," she said. "I want people to be positive and not be afraid to smile. When people smile, they are happy. Smiling is like a superpower for people. It cuts through the negativity and makes people feel good."

Jones enjoys being a role model.

"You never know who you are impacting," she said. "If some little girl sees me as Miss NOC Enid, that may encourage her to try and do the same thing. You have to try things in order to be successful."

She enjoyed her experience at the Miss Oklahoma Pageant so much she is trying to qualify for this year's pageant.

"I've been participating in competitions this year because I had so much fun at last year's," she said.

What's her advice for this year's winner?

"It's your year so make it the best it can be," she said.

She plans to attend Oklahoma State University next fall. Her goals are to become a sports physician for sports' team.

NOC invites you to give the gift of gratitude by mailing a letter. The booth will be open from October 24th through November 11th and on the common floor(2). Stamps, letters, and envelopes will be provided.

FEELING GRATITUDE AND NOT EXPRESSING IT IS LIKE WRAPPING A PRESENT AND NOT GIVING IT.
