

NOC offers student internship program

By Sharon Park

The Maverick Staff Writer

Graduation comes faster than a student think and before the student knows, it they are venturing out to forge a career.

One of the most useful tools the student can use to prepare for this inevitability is an internship. Meant to give real world experience, internships help develop key skills and connections to smooth the transition between college and future field of employment.

There are numerous internships out there, student can find an application to with a google search. Luckily, NOC offers a simpler option for its students.

Under the Academics tab on the NOC website, find the internship division. One mouse click and the student will be taken to an application to be contacted by the Internship Program to help find one that is the most suitable. Along with this application there will be links to real testimonials, available internships, helpful info sheets, and necessary forms.

To meet the qualification for an internship a student must have earned at least 30 credit hours, maintain a GPA of at least 2.50, and have a recommendation from a faculty member. The internship will be with a business partner in a declared major. It is important the student prepare a resume ready or at least drafted. Having an idea of location and what kind of work is key.

Along with the lists on the website and internet, the Dean of Academic Services has a list that ranges in location and industry.

Do not underestimate the power of reaching out to faculty, former classmates, or friends. They might know of opportunities you can seize. If nothing else, call a business you might have in mind and ask if there are any internships available.

The most important thing is to keep trying. Use failure as a steppingstone, not a roadblock. For more information please contact Coordinator of Student Academic Success Services Kathleen Swain at Kathleen.swain@noc.edu.

NOC Students participated in the OSRHE Higher Education Day Feb. 14.

NOC represented at Higher Ed Day

Northern Oklahoma College students, faculty, and staff joined other state system institutions at the state Capitol Feb. 14 to demonstrate the value and importance of higher education in the state.

NOC took a contingent of 25 students, faculty, and staff from the Tonkawa, Enid, and Stillwater campuses.

Speakers included Dr. Brandon Tatum, Chief of Staff for Governor Kevin Stitt; Speaker Charles McCall; Rep. Anthony Moore; Sen. Adam Pugh; State Regents chair Michael C. Turpen; and Chancellor Allison D. Garrett.

“Students, faculty and staff from Oklahoma’s public colleges and universities came together today at our State Capitol to highlight the value of a college degree,” said Garrett. “Over half of the top 100 occupations identified by Oklahoma Works as critical to economic growth in our state will require an associate degree or higher, including the top 29 highest paying jobs. Bachelor’s and associate degree holders earn 75% more and 25% more, respectively, than those with only a high school diploma. Investing in higher education drives economic opportunity for individual Oklahomans and attracts high-wage employers, which creates vibrant communities across our state.”

While bachelor’s degrees in STEM (science, technology, engineering, and math) disciplines increased 47% and health professions degrees increased more than 26% over the last decade, shortages persist in these sectors. For FY24, the State Regents request $26.3 million for critical workforce development initiatives, including funds to expand nursing education program and medical residency capacity to address the state’s shortage of Registered Nurses and physicians; support institutional efforts to increase enrollment and graduation in STEM disciplines; and continue providing scholarships for adult students nearing completion of a college degree or pursuing an industry-recognized micro-credential or certificate.
