

Hypnotist dazzles audience at KPAC

By Savannah Chenoweth
The Maverick Staff Writer

Northern Oklahoma College in Tonkawa hosted Hypnotist Michael Mayo in the Kinzer Performing Arts Center on Tuesday, March 22.

Students had an entertaining night full of fun and laughter.

Students were able to volunteer to be hypnotized or had the option to just watch. One of the students that volunteered was sophomore Meagan Bellar. It was Bellar's first time being hypnotized and was able to comment on the experience.

"I felt like I was in an out-of-body experience," Bellar states. "I was well aware of everything around me but could only focus on one voice."

Many of the students on stage were asked to do different activities throughout the show. The tasks that were asked of them varied from playing an imaginary instrument, giving their best model walk, and dancing.

"I remember when I was dancing," Meagan Bellar recalls. "I had no idea why I was dancing, but I knew that I was supposed to, and it felt necessary."

Hypnosis can have a different effect on everyone. Some of the students were deep into the hypnosis, and others were in and out. It made the show enjoyable because you never knew who to keep an eye on, as at any moment someone could do something entertaining.

"I would be hypnotized again," Bellar explains. "It was fun and different. It was not like anything I had ever done before. I recommend everyone to get hypnotized once in their life."

Michael Mayo did a fantastic job and kept the audience engaged while he was hypnotizing students. It made for a fun and memorable night at NOC Tonkawa.

Tips on picking a college major

By Hannah Lake
The Maverick Staff Writer

Growing up, everyone is asked what they want to be when they grow up.

Some people follow in the footsteps of their parents, some follow where the money goes, and others do whatever makes them happy.

When I was asked what I wanted to be when I was a kid, I looked at the book in my hands and said, “an author.” No one in my family took that answer seriously. Their reasoning was that there were too many authors and that it did not make much money, it was not a real job.

So, I picked psychology as my major, thinking about being a psychiatrist and making a lot of money. When I was in a meeting with my advisor at the time, I did not feel good about the path I was going toward. I did not feel happy, and I was nervous about what the future had in store. After that discussion, I sat down and really thought about what I wanted to do, what skills do I have, and what skills do I want to learn.

In the last semester of high school, my writing club went to another college to sit with the creative writing class. I loved it; I loved the ideas that were being shared, I loved the environment, it became easy for me to be involved. I then changed my major to creative writing.

Here are my tips for picking a major:

1. Find what makes you passionate.
2. What skills do you want to improve on?
3. Pick classes that interest you.
4. Reach out to the people in the field you are interested in.
5. It is okay to have the same major as your family.
6. It is okay to pick a major that your family does not like.
7. It is okay to change your major.
8. It is okay to have more than one.
9. A major and a minor is acceptable.
