

Production of “Little Women” comes to a close

By Savannah Chenoweth
The Maverick Staff Writer

The Northern Oklahoma College Division of Fine Arts in Tonkawa presented Little Women the musical March 3-6 in the Kinzer Performing Arts Center.

Based on the book by Louisa May Alcott, Little Women is a coming-of-age story set during the Civil War, that focuses on four sisters as they navigate through life. The NOC Tonkawa theater department did a wonderful job on this timeless classic.

Emma Valgora, a freshman from Ponca City, is a member of the Roustabouts, Chamber Choir, Madrigals Choir, and the President’s Leadership Council. Emma landed the lead part of Jo March, the second eldest of the March Sisters who wants to pursue her writing but runs into the difficulties of being a woman in the 19th century.

“It was really fun preparing to play the lead for Little Women!” Valgora mentioned. “I spent a lot of time over Christmas break listening to the soundtrack and reviewing my lines.”

Valgora’s hard work paid off because she was wonderful in the play, as were all the other performers. The cast and crew spent weeks preparing for the opening night and were very happy with the outcome.

“I think the show went great!” Valgora commented, “The cast, crew, and orchestra got to see all of our hard work pay off and put on an awesome musical of the well-known classic!”

The musical was upbeat, funny, and very well performed. The cast and crew put on a show that captured the audience’s attention throughout both acts. Overall, I enjoyed watching the show and am excited to see what else is in store for the rest of the year.

There are many upcoming events that are going to take place in KPAC. I strongly encourage you to attend because they are performances you do not want to miss!

Life changing.
