NOC Foundation recognizes scholarship winners, donors

Northern Oklahoma College donors and scholarship recipients were honored at the 2022 NOC Foundation Recognition Dinner held Thursday, April 7, at the Renfro Center in Tonkawa.

NOC Foundation Vice-Chairman Mark Detten welcomed students and donors to the annual event noting the Foundation was established in 1963 and this year marks 59 years of “Making a Difference.” The Foundation currently has assets of $15.6 million.

Detten also highlighted year one of the newly developed NOC Foundation Strategic Plan commenting, “There are a lot of exciting things happening at NOC and the Foundation is in position to help align with the College’s strategic goals and direction,” he said. “Throughout this coming year, we will share more about our development.”

A number of new scholarships were established this past year, announced by Dr. Jill Green, Director of Development and Donor Relations. They include the LPN Bridge Scholarship, The Rowena Gharst Corr Scholarship, NOC Sheep Center Scholarship, Mom and Pops Allen Scholarship, and Loftis Access to Success for Blackwell High School Concurrent Students Scholarship.

Representing the NOC Foundation scholarship students, Patrick Costello (represented by Dr. Frankie Wood-Black, Engineering, Physical Science, and PTEC Division Chair) and Tara Mueggenborg spoke in gratitude to the donors for their scholarship awards. Forty students attended the event. During this past academic year, the Foundation awarded over $190,000 in scholarships to 394 recipients from the Tonkawa, Enid and Stillwater campuses.

Vice President for Development and Community Relations Sheri Snyder, who also serves as Executive Director of the Foundation, recognized the donors for their charitable efforts to Northern Oklahoma College.

Snyder commented, “What started out as one greater gifts drive campaign in the early sixties has evolved into several active annual campaign drives today. Even during these pandemic times, this year’s annual greater gifts drive and employee campaigns has received over $143,000 in total contributions.”

Additionally, she stated, “I always say how truly blessed we are with so many friends of Northern Oklahoma College believing in our purpose and mission. Each donor and the support they provide serves as a constant reminder that the positive impact of Northern is felt way beyond the institution and that there are many generous friends who see the value of a higher education.” All donors in attendance were recognized in each giving club with the 2021 Honor Roll.

NOC President Dr. Clark Harris thanked the donors for their charitable efforts.

“I have thoroughly enjoyed this evening and the opportunity to meet so many wonderful people that have a passion for NOC,” Dr. Harris said. “I love that we can bring our students together with the generous donors that make their college education possible.”

“Thank you to the donors and students for joining us tonight,” he added. “We are so proud of all of you and the impact that you have had on so many lives. We want to thank all of the donors that have so generously supported the

Enid High students visit campus

By Alexander Ewald
Enid News & Eagle

Enid High School students got some Northern exposure with some song and dance from a long-running college music ensemble on Wednesday.

Northern Oklahoma College Tonkawa's Roustabouts, part of the college's music department, serenaded more than 300 Plainsmen at Enid's Briggs Auditorium with a shortened set from the group's just-ended tour featuring 45 minutes of music from 2021 and years past.

EHS students visited Northern Oklahoma College's nearby Enid campus for the college's semi-annual Northern Encounter day, also meeting with academic and activities directors and touring the campus ahead of making final college decisions.

The last time the Roustabouts were in Enid was in 2019, said Eddie Dixon, group director and fine arts division chair. Scheduling conflicts — not to mention the COVID-19 pandemic — had prevented the singers from coming to town, Dixon said.

The group was coming off a busy weekend, having held auditions for next year's group on Saturday afternoon and the tour's "big finale" show on Saturday night, Dixon said. They then were asked to perform in Enid.

"So, we put the band back together," he said, holding bags of Chick-fil-A for his around 35 students, including singers, band members and technical managers.

Because the event was part of NOC Enid's tour day, Dixon said he didn't expect students from Enid to want to join the performing group.

"We don't just recruit for ourselves. We recruit for the schools too," he said.

Nick Kelly, an NOC freshman in the singer group, said he only got a handful of hours of sleep.

"I always have this saying, whenever you're about to go out on stage ... There's no feeling like going on stage and performing for somebody," Kelly said. "You can only find that feeling on a stage."

Enid High students also saw a show at the NOC planetarium and a program about Bonnie and Clyde, said NOC Enid Vice President Jeremy Hise.

"It's a high-quality education at a very affordable cost, and we're trying to demonstrate that to them," he said.
