Bryan Kenney accepts women's wrestling position at NSU

Northern Oklahoma College Men's Wrestling Coach Bryan Kenney has accepted a position as the head women's coach at Northeastern State University.

Kenney helped restart the men's program in 2024.

"I want to thank everyone at Northern Oklahoma College and the town of Tonkawa," Kenney said. "These past two years have been a huge blessing. Moving from Texas to Northern Oklahoma was a unique experience as I transitioned from high school to college coaching. The people we met and the relationships we made has helped our family call this area home.

I am thankful for the grind and the special program we built at NOC."

"To our wrestlers — they are the reason this experience has meant so much," he added. "They helped push me to continually improve.

Kenney had parting words for the Maverick wrestlers.

"I will always be proud of what we accomplished together and the men and women you are becoming," he said. "We have our final push together as seven of our guys and women's team goes to nationals. As a family we thank you for being a part of "The Kenney Family" and being role models for our own kids."

Skip Kelly speaks to NOC Enid regarding community

The Northern Oklahoma College Student Government Association hosted Oklahoma City attorney and Enid native Skip Kelly at NOC Enid on Tuesday as part of the Enid SGA Speaker Series.

Kelly's talk was titled, "There is no Community without Unity."

Kelly spoke to NOC students and Enid community members about ways to build a good community.

"Utilize all your talents," Kelly said. "Whether it be your time, money, labor, or talent. Everyone has something to offer wherever you live. Many of you students may not live in Enid when you leave NOC but be a part of the community wherever you live."

Kelly gave an example of the strong Enid community when he told the story of an Enid elementary teacher that he remembered from his school days. After Kelly left for college in Texas and returned to Enid after two months, she saw him and asked him why he wasn't in college.

"She told me that I would be in college the next semester," Kelly joked. "And I was. You see, that's what a strong community does. People look after each other, they hold each other accountable, they give their time, they show they care. That's what builds a strong community and I challenge the students here to build a strong community in their future."

Former NOC Fine Arts Instructor set for Distinguished Alumni induction

Wilma Harman is one of three to be honored March 26 as Northern Oklahoma College Distinguished Alumni for 2026.

Harman, deceased, NOC Class of 1973, was an NOC Fine Arts Division Instructor.

Harman lived a life defined by music, devotion, and an unwavering commitment to the students and communities she served. Born July 27, 1933, to Lloyd and Verna Masters in Ponca City, Oklahoma, she discovered her love for music at an early age. At just six years old, she accompanied her brother Wayne to an accordion lesson and left in tears—not because she disliked it, but because she longed to play herself. Though the accordion was nearly bigger than she was, her determination convinced her parents and teacher to find a smaller instrument. That moment marked the beginning of a lifelong musical journey.

Throughout grade school, Harman studied accordion and later transitioned to piano, studying under respected instructors in Deer Creek and Blackwell. By high school, her talent was unmistakable. After performing her first solo recital as a junior, her instructor remarked that it felt like attending a college recital. Encouraged to expand her abilities, she began studying the organ as well.

She graduated from Deer Creek High School in 1951 and married Lyman F. Harman soon after his basic training in the U.S. Navy. In 1957, they settled in Blackwell, Oklahoma, where they raised five children and welcomed many more into their extended family. Even while raising a busy household, she remained deeply involved in church music, serving as organist, choir director, and music chair at First Christian Church for 52 years—a role she cherished.

In 1965, she became the music teacher at Braman Public Schools, where her students achieved notable success in competitions and performances. Though changes in state certification requirements eventually ended her tenure there, the transition opened another door. In 1973, Harman began working at Northern Oklahoma College as secretary to Bill Heilmann—“Uncle Bill”—while also teaching piano. Before long, she was directing and shaping vocal groups including the Roustabouts, NocQuints, Nocturnes, and Northern Knights. Her vision helped organize and elevate these ensembles, and she became the heart of the Roustabout family.

Determined to earn formal credentials, she pursued higher education while working and raising her family, completing coursework at NOC and Northwestern Oklahoma State University before earning her Master of Music Education degree from Wichita State University.

To her students, Harman was far more than a teacher. Her office door—and her home—were always open. Roustabouts gathered at her house for popcorn, movies, and laughter. She pushed students beyond their comfort zones, saw potential they could not yet see, and offered both accountability and unconditional encour-

A Weekly Portal to the North Oklahoma Sky

Brought to you by the Bert & Janice Mackie Planetarium at Northern Oklahoma College

This Week's Viewing Conditions:

The Moon: The Moon will be waning so it will start dimming. The Moon rise will be later in the evenings allowing for better evening viewing. (Remember its time to Spring Forward to Daylight savings time.)

Weather: Check the forecast! The weekend looks to be clearing with a chance of rain on Tuesday, March 10. The weekend looks promising for star gazing.

Highlights for the Week of Friday, March 6 to March 13, 2026

This Week – Jupiter is going to be near the “Twins,” Caster and Pollux and should be bright in the sky. Saturn and Venus are going to pair up in the evening sky. Look for them shortly after sunset about a finger’s width above the western horizon.

The Moon is going to help you locate Spica, the brightest star in the constellation Virgo. As the Moon rises in the late evening of the 6th, you will be able to see Spica just above it.

Astronomical Notes

Virgo is the second-largest constellation in the sky, and marks our transition into spring. It contains 11 Messier Objects and there are 58 stars visible to the naked eye. Spica, the brightest “star,” is actually a binary star system that is approximately 250 light-years from Earth.

Citizen Science Corner: The NOC Challenge

This Week's Mission: The “Finger-Width” Planet Race This week offers a unique chance to witness the orbital speeds of our neighbors. While planets look like “stars,” they are constantly in motion against the background of space.

The Task: On the evening of March 6, locate Venus and Saturn in the West shortly after sunset. They will be about “one finger’s width” apart (approx. 1 degree).

The Observation: Check back on March 8 and 10. Are they getting closer together or moving further apart? Which planet appears to be “moving” faster relative to the horizon?

Pro Viewing Tip
Avoiding the “Moon Wash”

Spica will be close to the Moon, and thus will appear smaller and dimmer than it actually is. To see Spica’s “blue” color, stand in a spot where an object like a tree or a building blocks the Moon from your view and you can still see the “star.”

agement. Alumni described her as charismatic, patient, kind, and generous with her affection.

Even after retiring from NOC in 2002, she continued accompanying choirs, teaching private lessons, and sharing her love of music well into her 80s. On July 3, 2024, at age 90, she joined what many imagine as God’s heavenly choir.

She did not work for recognition—she worked because she loved music with her whole being. Her legacy lives on through generations of students, family, and friends who still hear her influence every time they sit at a piano or lift their voices in song.

Adam Leaming and Rick Scott will also be inducted on March 26.

Non-refundable tickets are now available for

The Class of 1976 will also be recognized. The Alumni Legacy Scholarship will also be presented.

The banquet will be held at the Renfro Center at 6 p.m.

The award recognizes the achievements of former students whose personal lives, professional achievements and community service exemplify the objectives of the college.
